"PRESENT POLITICS."

The Boston Journal in noticing "the hearty tributes which are everywhere paid by the press to the memory of the late Senator Wade," takes occasion to remark that "his qualities were such that they would have found but little sphere of action in our present politics." This is a style of deprecatory reference which the doughface press of our "present politics" habitually make when compelled to recognize the sturdy manhood of the men who upheld the cause of the Republic in its hours of peril, but who have refused to abase themselves by indorsing the compromise and surrender of the principles which they have so faithfully championed. Having read this opinion of the Journal that "the qualities" of grand old Ben Wade "were such that they would have found but little sphere of action in our present politics" we were interested to find what the "qualities" were which the Journal recognizes as incompatible with the trade and dicker "politics" of to-day. We find that it declares that the recalling of his honest, noble, indomitable character has elicited the most generous admiration among all classes." It shows that even in extreme Democratic papers admits that "the stout old man was honest, had no patience with shams, and despised miscreants and frauds." And the Journal itself declares it a pleasant one that the force of a true, brave, patriotic life outlives the prejudices of politics and remains an abiding inheritance in the hearts of the people."

So we have a very candid enumeration of the "qualities" of character which the Boston Journal thinks would find "but little sphere of action in our present politics." We must say that the Journal does not seem to be far out of the way, judging from its own standard of "present politics," and it was just those traits which distinguished Benj. F. Wade as "honest," as one who "had no patience with shams, and despised miscreants and frauds"—it was precisely "the force of a true, brave, patriotic life" that rendered it impossible for the veteran Ohio Republican to lend his sanction to, or withhold his protest against the shameful "policy" of surrender and sham which the Journal applauds as the essential features of our "present politics."

THE VICE-PRESIDENT'S VIEWS

Vice-President Wheeler recently made a brief visit at Petersburg, Va. as the guest of his cousin. Rev. Dr. Alfred Wheeler, editor of the Christian Advocate. While there he was interviewed by the Telegraph, and expressed his views very freely on the silver question and with reference to the Louisiana persecutions. His remarks on the latter topic are reported as follows:

Reporter—After your long study of the Southern character and temper, Mr. Wheeler, do you think the Southern people, as a people (or those of Louisiana, sympathize with the prosecution of the Returning Board?

Mr. Wheeler—Is there a particle of evidence that they do not? Does Gov. Nicholls show any disapprobation of the prosecution? Do any of the New Orleans papers condemn it? Do the Southern Congressmen disown it? Do any of the public men of that State speak out against it? Have they come to the judgment and feeling of the people but by the actions of those who represent them? They do sympathize with the prosecutors, every man of them, notwithstanding the prosecution is a gross outrage on justice. It can be nothing else, to convict a man without even the good formality of an indictment, and bring him to trial on an information. But they would do the same to a good many others. They would convict John Sherman if they caught him down there or Gen. Garfield. The deed was wholly unjustifiable, and in open violation of a sacred legal maxim to become nothing of the kind should occur. I did not wish to be interviewed on some of the points you have mentioned, as it looks like presumption in me to be giving opinions on them. But I am perfectly free to say what I think of this outrage on Gen. Anderson. [Straightening up in his seat and pointing to Dr. Wheeler.] Gen. Anderson is as guiltless of the crimes charged against him as you are.

Here Mr. Charles Wheeler remarked—I presume the President could not pardon him, even if he saw fit to interfere?

The Vice-President replied—No. This is a State offence he is charged with.

Reporter—When the trouble was settled in Louisiana by the recognition of Gov. Nicholls and the acceptance of his legislative promise to let bygones be bygones, Mr. Wheeler, did the Republican democrats there then anticipate any such reason as is now given for the prosecution of the board, viz., that it is to vindicate the law of the State, and not to punish political enemies?

Mr. Wheeler—No, they did not. They put full faith in a solemn resolution of the Legislature according to its plain meaning. They never once thought of such an interpretation as is now put upon it.

As the reporter was leaving, the Vice-President extended his hand to the reporter saying he would prefer to have you say nothing about many things we have talked about, but I don't care how you express my views on the Silver bill and on this Louisiana outrage."

The N. Y. Times says editorially: "The Louisiana Legislature will adjourn to-day, and as the concurrence of the Senate is needed for Executive pardons in that State, Gov Nicholls can do nothing beyond suspending the execution of the sentence passed on Gen. Anderson, till December. That he intends to interfere at all is merely a matter of conjecture, and as any action on his part in the Anderson case would be associated with some fresh 'concessions' in the allotment of federal patronage, it is hardly desirable, on public grounds, that it should be forthcoming. The people who lay the demoralization of Louisiana politics at the door of the 'carpet-bag' regime may begin to perceive that the 'native and best,' are more consummate adepts in the trade of political dicker, and more shameless traffickers in the prerogatives of justice, than the most corrupt of the carpet-baggers were ever accused of being."

ENGLAND WILL ROAR. The St. John News publishes the following sarcastic squib from the New York Graphic:

Russia—I want several Provinces to square off my territory.

England—Now, I don't think that's right.

Russia—I'm going to take those Turkish Ships.

England—Now you shouldn't do that. Taint right.

Russia—Let's see. But that isn't mean enough. I want two or three (or twenty or thirty millions of roubles.

England—By George, you'd better take Turkey and done with it.

Russia—Don't know but that I shall. Now, there's Egypt.

England—Now if you touch Egypt I shan't like it. I'll roar. I can roar awful. You'd better not make me roar.

Russia—Oh, roar and be d——d. I think I'll cork up the Bosphorus too.

Russia said—Now if you don't let the Bosphorus I will roar. I've got 400,000 roaring men I—

Russia—Yes, I'll put a foot on the Bosphorus.

England—Now, I'm just going to commence to roar right away if you do that. Austria will roar with me, too, won't you Austria?

Austria—I—I—dunno. I haven't roared for a good while. I got awful sick the last time I roared at Germany. Maybe I'll roar. I'll see. I'll think about it.

England—Well, I've a good mind to roar all by myself. I believe it's shameful. Why, the man has no more conscience than a bear.

GOOD LOUISIANA TREACHERY.

WASHINGTON OPINIONS OF THE PERSECUTION OF THE MEN WHO DECLARED THE VOTE OF LOUISIANA FOR HAYES—EARNEST FEELINGS AT THE PRESIDENT'S FAILURE TO PROTEST AGAINST THE OUTRAGE.

[Special Correspondence N. Y. Times.]

WASHINGTON, March 1. There is a mystery about the whole business of the Louisiana Returning Board trials which needs yet to be explained. The members of the Cabinet, it is said, and with most direct authority one, received information which was regarded as positive that Anderson would be pardoned. Telegrams have been received from Anderson which stated indirectly his certain expectation of a pardon. There have certainly been communications received which gave two or three very cool-headed persons expectations of a pardon. Now it is understood that the opportunity for Nicholls to pardon Anderson has passed till next December. This fulfils the common expectation, for very few persons here, beyond those who trusted to private assurances, have believed that Nicholls would dare to interfere. It thus looks as if he would render his life insecure. Probably the trouble really is that he would lose some points in the intricate and torturous game of politics playing in Louisiana, of which the hunting down of the misdeeds of the Returning Board is a grand feature. The attempt to influence or affect Federal politics seems to have disappeared from the trials, and at the present moment they are presented as a local game."

Herein is Nicholls' difficulty, no doubt, for what he might have been able to do in the face of a general party opposition he has not the courage to attempt with a strong and reckless faction striking sparks at his own position. There may be other ways and opportunities for him to effect the pardon of Anderson, and dispose of the suits, that are not understood here; but if so they must soon be disclosed. The first development cannot be long delayed, since it will include the removal of a Collector for the port of New Orleans. There are many persons who believe that the failure of Nicholls to pardon Anderson will secure Packard's nomination. There would be some opposition to this selection in certain quarters. I would listen and arouse this Democracy, particularly the Louisiana branch of it; but the Republicans in the Senate would unite earnestly and gladly to confirm him.

Of course, the President is blamed. There is great dissatisfaction at his not having written for the public a strong letter which would probably do the Returning Board no good. Nobody expected that. Such would show the President's position, and he could easily act in such a manner as to bring upon him the violent opposition of the Democracy, and perhaps secure for him the future support of a civil party. But that could be accomplished by it would be regarded as worth more than securing the abandonment of the Returning Board prosecutions.

There are some sincere friends and supporters of the President who think he should have taken a bolder position against the breach of faith which the acceptance of the trial indicated, and he says as they were mentioned, and let his opinion be fully known, to the whole country, and to have it understood that his confidence in the good faith of the actors in the business, and in the possibility of genuine conciliation which he so ardently desired, would be destroyed by any such proceedings. Such a course, it is claimed, might have had some effect on the trials, but he can now do nothing. As has been said before, there are some possibilities of new developments, which may be awaited.

The latest trustworthy information which can be obtained in regard to the matter tonight is to the effect that as the Legislature of Louisiana will adjourn to-morrow, and the action of the Governor would be of small value legislatively, no pardons or deeds can be made unless the circumstances be forced for Gen. Anderson until the next session. He may be reprieved, however, etc. so given over to the forces of the jailer in New Orleans, instead of being sent to the Penitentiary at Baton Rouge. Even this, however, was soon which may not be granted to a guiltless man as I have before me. By a Governor whose only title to the office is based upon fraud and bloodshed.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY-FIFTH CONGRESS—Second Session

Senate.

Washington March 8.

Senate not in session.

House.

The morning hour was consumed in discussion upon resolution reported by Committee on accounts for payment of laborers employed in the cloak rooms, which was finally referred to the Committee on civil service reform.

Resolutions were adopted calling on the Secretary of the Interior and Secretary of War for all information in regard to the geographical and geological surveys conducted by their respective Departments during the past 10 years.

Two Senate amendments to bill authorizing operation of Section 4374 of the Revised Statutes in regard to Grand Islands were concurred in.

The long bond bill was referred to the Committee on ways and means.

The House then went into Committee of the whole upon the bill for payment of certain claims for the late Southern mail contractors.

The bill makes available immediately an appropriation of $375,000 already appropriated for the payment of such contracts for service rendered prior to May 31, 1861.

Mr. Price said if the United States Government owed a just debt to any one who rendered service to the rebellion he was in favor of the government discharging its just obligations but this bill provided that payments should be made up to May 31, 1861, when in reality most of the States went into rebellion in the previous January, he therefore offered an amendment providing that no payment be made to mail contractors for services rendered after the respective states adopted the ordinance of secession.

Mr. Hyis argued that inasmuch as the United States did not recognize the insurrectionary condition of the Southern States until the 19th of May the government should pay for the service rendered in those States up to that time.

Mr. Reagan pursued the same line of argument.

Mr. Willits denied the statement made by Mr. Reagan, some time ago, that the Government of the United States never paid or assumed to pay contractors, and read from an act passed by the late Confederate Congress in which it assumed to pay every dollar, the only limitation being that such contractors should be loyal to the Confederacy. He found on examination of the Confederate records that $1,000,000 of this had been audited and paid and the Confederate Government had gone so far as to provide that if the United States Government should thereafter pay them, the contractors should reimburse the Confederate Government for the amounts paid them. He also quoted from the records to show that Confederate Postmaster General, in which he credited himself with $600,000 paid on account of service rendered prior to May 31st, 1861.

Mr. Aiken inquired that if because eighteen claims have been paid, the Government should repudiate all unsettled debts?

Mr. Reagan said he had not seen any of the reports since the end of the war; but if he had all his reports he thought he could prove what he had previously stated, but if the gentleman from Mich. (Willetts) was right, he would consent to immediately so as to exclude the payment of such contracts as were paid by the Confederate Government.

After further debate Mr. Tucker moved that the committee rise and recommit the bill.

The committee then rose; but the point of order being raised that the bill was still in Committee of the Whole, the motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Post Roads could not be entertained.

The Speaker announced that he would be absent to-morrow and appointed Blackburn Speaker pro tem. Adjourned.

FOREIGN NEWS.

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

The Coming Conference.

AUSTRIA AND HER TROUBLES.

SULEIMAN PASHA DOOMED.

England and the Conference.

LONDON, March 8. The London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says that the belief gains ground that if Bismarck presides over the Conference Beaconsfield will represent England. It is exceedingly improbable that the Anglish delegate, whoever he may be, will remain in the Conference, if it becomes apparent that the object of a majority of the powers is simply to endorse the Russia-Turkish bargain; but if the Conference means to more than ratify the foregone conclusion, there will become important proposals affecting British interests in the Mediterranean and the safety of the Suez Canal.

England Agrees to the Conference.

In the Commons this afternoon Stafford Northcote announced that England had accepted the invitation of Austria of attend the conference, which will be held at Berlin. Lord Lyons, the English Ambassador at Paris, was selected to act as Embassador there. The date of the conference is not yet fixed.

Trouble in Austria.

LONDON, March 8. The correspondent at Vienna of the Daily Telegraph says he believes that Count Andrassy has abandoned the original intention of making the vote of credit by delegations a Cabinet question, as the project will encounter strong opposition. The majority of Hungarian delegates think the credit is intended for occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which they consider only justifiable in the event Servia or Montenegro rais pretension to those Provinces. Austria's Polish subjects are also violently opposed to the occupation; but favor the credit for opposing Russia and Servia. The Croatian parties are also agitating in the direction of their respective plans in the Hapsburgh dies. The agitation is probably fomented from without for the purpose of creating internal difficulties for the Government at a moment when grave decisions may have to be taken. Many well informed people believe that the occupation scheme must be abandoned, which opinion seems strengthened by the fact that the new loan has not yet concentrated the troops on any point of the Turkish territory.

The Channel Squadron.

MALTA, March 8. The Channel Squadron is still here waiting orders. The troop ship Euphrates, homeward bound, with 1063 soldiers and the Serapis, eastward with 20 officers, have also been detained here. March 5th. Admiral Hornby will also have gone to the Dardanelles and one to Crete.

The Cretan Insurgents.

ATHENS, March 8. By advice of Foreign Consuls the Cretan Insurgents have accepted the armistice offered by the Porte. Thessalian advices state that the insurgents hold all of the province except the towns.

The Bulgarian Prince.

VIENNA, March 8. It is believed in well informed quarters that the reorganization of Bulgaria will be entrusted to a more moderate politician than the late Prince Tcherkassky thus renovating the suspicion of Russification or lengthened stay of the Russians.

Conservative Terms Accepted.

VIENNA, March 8. The Politica Correspondence publishes under reserve the following from Bucharest: It is said that the Russings on March 6th occupied the Bessarabian towns of Ismail Cahul and Jalgrad. The Roumanian Government at present keeps this secret; but a Cabinet council is said to have been held under the Presidency of Prince Charles to-same a protest.

Suleiman Pasha Doomed.

COLOGNE, March 8. A letter to the Gazette from Pera states Suleiman Pasha is doomed as his papers proved the very complaining a conspiracy for the overthrow of the Sultan.

ITALY.

Letters to the Czar and Wilhelm.

ROME, March 8. Pope Leo has written the Czar expressing a hope of a resumption of negotiations relative to the church in Poland. He intends writing a similar letter to Emperor William. Holy wishes to send a special Envoy to Berlin, but the ultramontanes oppose such a measure. The Swiss guards have renewed the disturbance of Thursday and probably will be dishanded.

Resignation of the Minister.

LONDON, March 8. A special to the Standard from Rome announces the Ministry has resigned. The King will probably summon Signor Farandelli to form a Cabinet.

GERMANY.

The Ministry of Finance.

A special from Berlin to the Pall Mall Gazette says it is now thought Herr Bennigsen will succeed Herr Camphausen as Prussian Minister of Finances.

BRAZIL.

Restrictions upon Free Colored Americans.

NEW YORK, March 8. Correspondence between the Committee of the American and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society and Sec'y Evarts develops the fact that several colored citizens of the United States were obliged to be discharged from the employ of a railroad company proposing to have their labor on their road in Brazil, owing to the law of that Empire prohibiting any free colored people being brought there, and Secretary Evart's says his Department can take no cognizance thereof until complaints are formally made that citizens of the United States have suffered from such law.

SOUTH AMERICA.

A Warning to Emigrants.

WASHINGTON, March 8. The U. S. Consul at Buenos Ayres says: "I have been in receipt of frequent letters since I have been here asking in regard to the condition and prospects of labor in this country. I would not advise anybody to come here with a view to bettering his condition. They cannot expect to find any employment of any kind. All persons come here in search of work they should bring sufficient money to pay return expenses. Every few days the Consulate is visited by distressed Americans who, having been induced to come here, have been sadly disappointed upon arrival to find no opportunity to earn a livelihood and became objects of charity."

INDIA.

The Scarcity of Food.

LONDON, March 8. Manchester Guardian says the latest mail advices describing the effects of dearness of food throughout India leave no doubt about the cause of the comparatively small amount of cotton goods now being consumed, and consequent indisposition of merchants to buy in this market at usual rates.

THE EXTREMITIES.

Conflagration at Panama.

NEW YORK, March 8. A private despatch from Panama reports a fire there last Wednesday which destroyed the Grand Hotel and other large buildings with many warehouses. Losses reported half a million with insurance of $330,000, mainly in German Co.'s.

Loss Less.

A despatch to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company says twenty-six buildings were burned Wednesday at Panama, but the hotel was saved and no damage to steamship or railway property.

ART AND RELIGION.

Mr. Knapp's Closing Lecture.

Rev. Arthur May Knapp's lectures in Unity Hall on "Art and Architecture" were closed last evening by one upon "Art and Politics," which by the thoroughness with which it was illustrated and the skillful manner in which the lecturer condensed the results of his wide study of the whole subject into this one short essay, gave great satisfaction to his hearers and will insure their attendance whenever Mr. Knapp again announces a course of lectures.

The whole series, covering Early Christian Art, Mediæval, Grecian and Gothic Art and Architecture with the three closing essays illustrating the force of the three great facts in Man's Art,—Nature, Race and Religion,—has been of great interest, and listeners have gladly travelled with him over the Old World, listening to his brilliant and thoughtful analyses of the numerous specimens of architecture, sculpture and paintings which he thought worth their study, and have been shown many beautiful copies of famous art products, and of wonderful buildings and monuments before embossed in them while the principles underlying their production were clearly examined, and their comparative merits carefully weighed. It has been a valuable course of the most delightful instruction part, so pointed and illuminated by the aid of the Script cons as to compel the recent gen of its best features in the memories of the audience. To many of his hearers much of the information was entirely new and fresh, and to those whose good fortune had enabled them to see much of what was shown in the original, the lecturer's comments and criticisms have been of great value. If we could have the privilege of more of this kind of popular instruction, by which the public could profit by the studies and researches of our more thoughtful scholars and travellers it would be well for this community and in time it's taste for such pleasures would supplant that for some which to say the least are not very edifying.

The topic of the evening was introduced by a reference to religion as the greatest of the factors which have influenced the art of man. Its power has especially illustrated by the change wrought by Christianity upon Greek Art. Byzantine artists with their cast and lifeless images before the direct descendants of those who had in pagan ages bestowed upon the world the most wonderful forms of beauty and grace. It was the Byzantine artist who made the first images of Christ, objects frightful to behold. This was the result of a test for, in religious thought and life. He, the high had brought into combination physical beauty and moral deformity. The Christians sought to reconcile moral beauty with physical deformity.

Passing to more general examples, the power of religion was shown in an impressive way, there being no work of art which does not in a greater or less degree bear the impress of the faith of its Creator. This was illustrated by tracing the growth of the two great Christian Art, pictures being exclusive and better, transcripts of the popular faith, than the records of church councils and creeds by fiat.

An interesting lecture also reflected most faithfully the religious sentiments of its builders. Examples were given of expression, by this means of the sentiments of solemnity, peace, joy, triumph and mourning—even in ruins Rome was the religious idea manifest as expressed especially by the varying expression of the roof lines of the Egyptian and Greek, denoting by its figures the spirit of a religion perfected and complete in the one case by rigid, priestly conventionalism, in the other by intellectual satisfaction in the dome of the East expressing the sentiment of contemplative calm and the Gothic, spire, the deathless aspiration of Christian faith. The same subtle expression or suggestion was then traced in sculpture and paintings, the Greek statues of the best age showing a quiet, noiseless calm, an aspect of self sufficiently and of satisfaction, while in those of a later age there may be seen an expression of discontent and craving, a spirit that was finally fully developed in Christian history, and reflected in Christian art. By a series of illustrations the difference between the Greek ideal of life and the Christian ascetic ideal was clearly shown—the indications of a revival of the former being seen in the simple human joy expressed by Raphael's Sistine Madonna—a go that the ascetic dead was passing away, and that in the popular thought the joys and duties of this early life were no longer to be wholly scorned for those of the life to come.

In conclusion it was shown that there must be no satisfying religious art until the two conflicting ideals are harmonized in a more perfect unity, until the claims of earth shall no longer be at war with those of Heaven.

Bangor Savings Bank.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.

HEARING BEFORE APPLETON, C. J., IN THE MATTER OF THE BANGOR SAVINGS BANK.

Friday, March 8, 1878.

Mr. Paine, counsel for the Bank, opened by reading the petition of the Trustees of the Bank, to the Court, for a sealing of deposits. Notices ordered by the Court, was proved. W. W. Bolster, Bank Examiner of the State of Maine, at the request of the Bank, made to the Court a detailed statement of the condition of the Bank's affairs as shown by the Examiner's critical examination.

In conclusion the Examiner drew from his statement is that the bank is more than solvent by about $2,000, and that the business is now being done by the Bank will warrant a dividend of 2½ per cent. in April.

Mr. Thurston, at the request of the depositors, read a schedule prepared by the officers of the Bank, of all the loans by the Bank and the particulars of the real estate and collateral security by which the loans are secured. The schedules are too voluminous to publish. All mortgages to the Bank, without an exception, are first mortgages and title perfect.

Mr. Bolster explained the object of the sealing process, its advantages and, in this case, its advisability. The proposition is simple one that any managed institution taking real estate as security, however ably conducted, if suddenly called upon to pay every depositor in full, can only do so at an extravagant sacrifice. Should this happen to occur at a time of such business depression and shrinkage in values as the present, none can stand the strain.

In all the Examiner's estimates he has made a large allowance for all depreciation.

Real estate is considered the safest and most profitable investment.

The Examiner paid a high compliment to the conduct of the affairs of the Bank, and the excellence of its officers.

In the case of this Bank the sealing should be to 70 per cent. In order to insure a full payment on demand of that amount on every deposit any surplus arising from a larger per cent. subsequently realized by the Bank will be divided pro rata among the depositors. Subsequent depositors have no claim on the surplus left after paying the 70 per cent.; the proceeds of any such surplus are applied to the payment of an additional per cent. to the prior depositors. If the Court see fit to seale down the deposits of this Bank to 70 per cent. it will leave a larger surplus and make it a stronger Bank than any Savings Bank in Maine.

If this bank should be allowed reasonable time in which to realize from its securities Mr. Bolster's opinion is, that not only will it be able to pay depositors the 30 per cent. taken off the deposits, in full, but also dividends upon the 30 per cent.

Mr. F. W. Moore, of Cherryfield, a large depositor, expressed himself well satisfied with the report of the Examiner, and did not feel at all alarmed concerning his interest in the Bank. The depositor needs only to give this Bank time in order to realize 100 per cent. on their deposits. We all have the utmost confidence in the management of the Bank, and surely every depositor must be satisfied with the reduct on allowed in their estimates for shrinkage in values.

Mr. Hill wanted the deposits sealed; thought it would be safer to scale to a lower figure than 70 per cent.

Hon. A. G. Wakefield being called for, expressed himself in favor of a sealing of 35 per cent.

Several other gentlemen spoke in favor of sealing the deposits.

Treasurer Thurston, of the Bank, presented a request from the depositors of the Bank residing in Dixmont, that the Bank be allowed to proceed. At the time of the run on the Bank, applications by depositors to the amount of $200,000 were made. Mr. Thurston gave as his opinion that the Bank could raise $50,000 from their short notes, in two weeks, without touching either bonds or mortgages.

Mr. Paine, counsel of the Bank, addressed the Court at some length.

At 12.07 P. M. his Honor announced his decision, sealing down the deposits to 65 cents on the dollar.

Mr. Paine announced that the April dividend of 2½ per cent. would be payable the first of May.

The Court room was filled at an early hour with a crowd of depositors, anxious to gain some information concern ng the condition of the Bank.

The suspension of the institution so soon after the favorable report of the Bank Examiner, had created some suspicion of its accuracy; but after the full investigation that has been made, and this public exhibit of its substantial assets, the most timid can but be satisfied that under the decision of the Court they will, in time, realize dollar for dollar.

At 2.20 P. M. His Honor, Judge Appleton announced that he had re-considered his decision and fixed the rate to which the deposits should be sealed at 70 per cent.

This increase is understood to have been made at the request of the officers of the Bank, whose knowledge of its affairs warrant their opinion of its solvency.

That this old and honored institution will soon be paying the remaining 30 per cent. is a consummation devoutly to be wished and, judging from the statement appended, one that may confidently be expected.

Furniture Repairing.

For Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fever,

Or ague in more commonly known as FEVER AND AGUE, with pain in the joints and through the back, an entire debilitating depression to yawn, pain in the limbs, mouth is bitter, tongue is white or yellow, appetite is lessened, by morning there is a slime upon the teeth and gradual weakness and debility. Vegetine is the only safe and reliable remedy. It is a compound purely vegetable, and perfectly harmless, which has been, by many years of the most remarkable cures, fully established, thanks and hosts, as the thoroughly concentrated fluid it is one of the strongest elements of the blood that is or can be put together. Vegetine does not cure by stunning the nerves and producing a state of temporary insensibility, or debilitate the body by exciting the nervous system, but entirely eradicates every taint of disease. Vegetine does not act as a powerful cathartic, or debilitate the bowels and cause this patient to dread other serious complaints which must follow. Only follow the directions as the cause disease by purifying the blood, which will remove the cause, and nature will restore the bowels, and organs name in performing all the duties of health. Vegetine is the only remedy that can be relied upon in the most distressing cases of fever and ague, and all complaints arising from an impure state of the blood, it appears to work like a charm, and I doubt not there are many people in this city and vicinity who have been cured of fever and ague by using Vegetine, can be cheerfully recommend it, and it will always fulfill every claim we make for it. For pamphlet containing certificates of cures, information, &c., call on your druggist and get a book, or address H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

AN OCTOGENARIAN TRIBUTE

To Dartmouth College, at the Anniversary of the Washington (D.C.) Dartmouth Association, February, 11th 1878

BY A COLLEGE GRADUATE OF 1814.

As Sons of old Dartmouth, with heart and hand greeting,
Each passing call, as received year by year,
We join now afresh in a tuneful happy meeting,
Cluster to by table refreshment and sound good cheer.

No change of age now obstructs our devotion
To pure Alma Mater of reason, and full flow of soul,
We bind, as dendrite, a true Yankee notion,
That reason oft lurks in the truculentous bowl.

We blend with fast pride in our dear Alma Mater,
Whose advance shows made both in science and Art,
That's scholarship she lends man's imitator,
Courage with performing subordinate part.

Her scholars have honored their special vocation,
In varied spheres of true classical lore,
From Benchers, the highest unto public station,
To place entered fitted to seize rising door.

Wrote dead her high ranks she has lately invaded,
And removed appeared teachers of scholarly lore,
Impressed true joy at each man's preparedness,
And, with her best cenere thus favors our union,
No fear that your Dartmouth Society ends

We have Bond for our union, in hearts united
In good greetings cordials are longer parchments,
We join Doc to Elson while there, and fair the pair.

To partners, amongst other dead or the living,
From whose benefactions rich blessings have flowed,
We pay our common mess freely of giving
Our thanks for the bounteous largess of one and all.

While placed Connections sensibly convene
The way to us occasioned, glad the fair belle,
So for a time separated and described forced
Of meeting respond to her love's invitation's calling.

That our Mother, co-continued, may be live and flourish,
Soon to come, in the pride of her strength, I pray,
Be ever her, and our faith, while life is timing
Shall nourish
Love and for our fund, in its breadth, all its depth.

After Editor's fashion, thus far in my rhyming
I have spoken well in conventional verse,
Hirse yes well nursing, as seeing, singing
Of with personal "I" that remains in engrave

The signs of the swan are denied even as when dying—
The forest no Esplendid in Autumnal decay,
The sunset the gorgeous, while fades in rosy
Reposed in the shroud of the rich parting day.

Unless to all these, is the tribute I render,
Such is evident tokens of nature's decay,
I take this occasion my poor note to tender,
To PARTINGTON, as doubtless the last day.

In my verse is not boldness, or my matter moweighty,
I ask of my friends that they pardon my fault,
When the cold damp is age to the close interest,
It is time for us to consecrate to halt

ROVING FARMERS

There is a class of farmers who are constantly on the lookout for a better place to go to. Their farms are always "for sale," and they dream of luxuriant lands in some other part of the country which can be bought "for a song," where their imagine they would be more prosperous, and enjoy life better than where they now reside. Many of these men own mortgaged farms, and for such men to desire to remove where they can own a free farm, though that free farm may be a natural wilderness is to better one's condition which the human mind cannot resist. But where did these men go? This is a serious question which no man can answer of his own knowledge. Suppose they can sell out and command $1,000 or $1,500 after paying a heavy debt, and they start for "the West," Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, or some other State. Eighty acres of land, with a comfortable house or log cabin on it, can be bought for from $6.00 to $10.00 per acre. The land is all right, as good as "the out of doors," but as for the surroundings. Neighbors are scarce, society is a myth, and to poor frail housewife who follows her husband without a murmur pines for friends. The children have to go two miles or further to school, and in the Winter time they cannot attend much of the time on account of the storms. Churches are few and far between, and the people are generally a mixture of various nations, and the result of all is that many an Eastern farmer who goes West is unhappy and wishes himself back on his old homestead. So if one goes South or anywhere, he will not find things just to his mind. If one thing is better than on the old place another is worse, and taking all things into consideration, but few farmers change their residences, who are able to make a living on the old place, that letter themselves by removing to a distant State. One may obtain rich lands at a low price where there is no market for what he knows; and he may get it to an unhealthy locality, and soon he may bury his wife and children. and what then?—a gloomy world for him.—Colonial Farmer.

LOOK TO THE LAMBS.—When they first make their appearance in the world lambs are very feeble animals, but if they once get well started they are, quite likely to grow, and if properly cared for, do well. The first day or two of its life is a critical period of a lamb. Therefore it is quite important for sheep owners to look after their flocks when it is time for the ewes to bring forth their lambs. Unless they are deformed, or extremely feeble, (which is seldom the case) nearly all lambs will live if they have a little care and attention. Probably a large proportion of them would live if let alone, but many would die. When the weather is cold they need special attention. A severe chill will be likely to be that unless prompt and proper remedies are used. The owner should visit the sheep yard frequently during the time at which lambs are expected. Every evening he should attend to new comers, if there are any which need help. To give specific directions would require a great deal of space.

California's rain storms are sometimes like her "big trees" and her valleys. Sacramento Valley in magnitude but if the storm in the Sacramento Valley, reported, on Tuesday, was, as the telegram started, "greater than the storms" in the same valley during the winter of 1861-2, the destruction of property must be immense. But "it is possible that in describing the recent storm the reporter used adjectives in the superlative degree in forgetfulness of the great flood which in 1861-62 converted the valleys of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers into a vast lake, and which destroyed millions of dollars worth of property. The rainfall during the season of that flood was simply enormous. At Sacramento the fall of rain during the month of December was 8.3 inches, and in January over fifteen inches. But heavy as this is, it is slight compared with the rainfall recorded at a station in Nevada county. The record begins on the 23d of December, inclusive, and to the first flood. During the seven days succeeding the 23d, the fall of rain was 74 inches; in the next nine days it was more than 84 inches; on the next day (Jan. 10) 5 8-10 inches; and on Jan. 11, 66 inches, making a total of ten feet in and a half inches of rain in nineteen days, nearly twelve inches of which fell within the forty-eight hours ending with Jan. 11. Between Jan 11 and 23, twelve days, the additional fall of rain was over nineteen inches, making the entire fall for the month from Dec. 23 to Jan. 23, over three feet nine inches! If the flood of this year is to exceed that of 1861-62, or even to equal it, an area nearly as large as that of Lake Michigan will be covered with water before many days.—Phila. Ledger.
